

Community Impact Statement

A Community Impact Statement gives the community an opportunity to tell the court how it has been affected by the crime. Community Impact Statements are voluntary, and are completed by a representative of the community. Contact your local Victim Service Unit if you have any questions about submitting a Community Impact Statement.

Who can be a representative? And what is a community?

Representative:

A person who belongs to the community, and who has been chosen by the community to write the statement

Community:

A group of people, such as those living in the same geographic area, belonging to diverse segments of the population, or any groups affected by the crime.

What can be included in a Community Impact Statement?

- How the crime has affected you:
 - emotionally
 - physically
 - financially
- Fears community members now have for their safety or the safety of family and friends
- You can draw a picture, write a poem or a letter to include in the statement if it helps you express how the crime affected your community

What cannot be included in a Community Impact Statement?

- Anything about the crime or the accused that is not directly related to the crime
- Anything that has not been proven in court
- Anything the accused was not found guilty of
- Any opinion about the sentence or criminal justice system, unless approved by the court
- Any information you do not want the accused or the public to know
